

CRIPPEN MOROSE,
GIRL HYSTERICAL,
CLOSELY JAILED

Murder Suspect and His Stenographer, Miss Leneve, Readily Admit Their Identity But Deny Knowledge of Elmore Woman's End.

MYSTERIOUS LIQUID
FOUND ON DOCTOR

Girl, Dressed as John Robinson, Jr., Threw Something Out of Stateroom Porthole When Arrested, Thought to be a Revolver.

Quebec, Que., Aug. 1.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and Ethel Clare Leneve, his stenographer, who were charged with the murder of Dr. Elmore, are today behind bars and under a close guard in the jail of Parliament house. They were brought ashore from the steamer Montrose at dawn this morning. The vessel was greeted by a tremendous crowd of people and by a squad of fifty policemen.

Crippen is silent and sullen. He sits on his cot refusing to talk. The Leneve girl is almost a physical wreck, and she sobs incessantly. In Crippen's effects a small paper parcel and a tiny bottle of brown liquid were found. It is believed that they were the poison which he intended to take if pressed to it. The girl was seen to throw something through the stateroom window when they were arrested. The article is believed to have been Crippen's revolver.

The Arrest at Father Point.
Father Point, Que., Aug. 1.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and Ethel Clare Leneve, his stenographer, who fled from London after the disappearance of Belle Elmore, the doctor's wife, were arrested here yesterday aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose, at the command of Inspector Dew of Scotland yard.

The identification of the fugitive by the English detective marked the culmination of one of the most sensational flights in recent criminal annals. Accompanied by two Canadian officers, he boarded the vessel at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning and fifteen minutes later both man and girl were locked in their staterooms. Crippen broken in spirit, but mentally relieved by the relaxed tension; the girl garbed in boy's clothing, sobbing hysterically. They were no longer the Rev. John Robinson and son as booked from Antwerp on July 26.

After brief delay, the Montrose continued her 100-mile journey up the river towards Quebec. Crippen is charged with the murder of an unknown woman. The girl is held as an accessory.

The scene enacted at this little settlement was dramatic. Inspector Dew had spent a sleepless night at the Montreal operator's side, communicating through the fog with the Montrose.

At 8:30 a. m. the approaching ship's whistle was heard. It awakened the villagers and the newspaper men who descended hastily and waited in a drizzling rain for the Montrose.

Shortly after 7:30 o'clock the Montrose pulled her nose through the fog and at 8:15 the pilot boat Eureka cut out from shore. She carried a host of newspaper men and photographers and as many townspeople as could crowd aboard. But Inspector Dew was not among them. He had embarked on the Eureka's small tender, accompanied by Chief McCarthy of the Quebec police and ex-Chief Dennis of the same city.

All were the garb of pilots and over his florid face Inspector Dew had pulled a pilot's visored cap. He did not wish Crippen to recognize him before he could approach and take advantage of the only avenue of escape, suicide. Four minutes quickly ran the tender alongside the Montrose and Dew and his companions stepped aboard.

Crippen was standing near the rail talking with Dr. Stuart, the ship's surgeon. That he was nervous was indicated by his furtive glances and his remark to Dr. Stuart: "There are three pills coming aboard," he said nervously. "Is that not unusual?" The physician did not reply but kept his eyes on the strangers, who walked rapidly toward them.

"Crippen, I want you," said Inspector Dew quietly as he approached. The dentist recoiled involuntarily as he recognized the man who addressed him, then the blood left his face, his breath came short and fast and he gulped incoherently as he was being led away to the captain's cabin, whence he was transferred later to his own stateroom. He said gratefully: "Thank God, the suspense is over, and I am glad."

Crippen's arrest accomplished, Dew hurried to Miss Leneve's stateroom. There he found her, still dressed as "John Robinson, Jr.," on the verge of nervous breakdown. Her appearance when told that she was under arrest was pitiable. All control that she had fought so hard to retain through the voyage left her. She cried out hysterically and became so faint that restoratives were administered. Shut in her room and restored to woman's dress, she was escorted by a guard as the vessel continued its journey for fear that she would take her life or collapse utterly.

After neither Crippen nor the pretty girl denied their identity, neither admitted any connection with the death of Belle Elmore. Inspector Dew's task was only to point out the witnesses to the Canadian police and their arrest take them back to England. Neither he nor the Canadians who made the arrest tried to get incriminating admissions from the couple. The police of Great Britain are not permitted thus to violate the low protecting the rights of arrested persons and the prisoners volunteered no information.

With the shock of arrest over, a stewardess changed the boy's clothing in which the girl had traveled as Crippen's son, women's garments. Then she collapsed again and lay for more than an hour in her berth, her body shaken with sobs. In a separate cabin, guarded by a detective, Crippen sat in silence, with his chin sunk on his chest.

NEW PROOF BODY
WAS MRS. CRIPPEN'S

Preparations Are Being Made For a Speedy Trial of the Man Just Captured in Quebec Yesterday.

London, Aug. 1.—Hope of convicting Dr. Crippen was greatly strengthened today by the report that Scotland yard had secured new evidence that the mutilated, lime-stone body found in Crippen's cellar is that of Crippen's wife. The evidence is said to have been obtained within the last few days but was kept a profound secret. Arrangements are being made for a speedy trial, and this alone is considered proof that the prosecution believes there will be no difficulty in proving the identity of the body, as without the identification there could be no conviction and no reason for a trial.

WILL KEEP LEE'S STATUE
IN STATUARY HALL

President Taft Has Approved Attorney-General Wickersham's Decision That Placing It There Is Legal.

Dover, Mass., Aug. 1.—President Taft has approved without comment an opinion by Attorney-General Wickersham to the effect that there is no provision of law by which the statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee, in consideration of honor, can be removed from Statuary hall in the capitol at Washington.

In addition to deciding the question on a purely legal basis, Mr. Wickersham argues the matter from an ethical point of view, declaring that Lee has come to be regarded as typifying all that was best in the cause to which he gave his services and in his most loyal acceptance of the complete overthrow of that cause. That Virginia should designate him for a place in Statuary hall as one illustrious for distinguished military service, the attorney-general declares, is but natural and warranted under the reading of the law.

Mr. Wickersham's opinion was called forth by resolutions of protest adopted by the department of New York, Grand Army of the Republic, at Syracuse, N. Y., on June 23, and by a communication from Corporal James Tanner, regarding these resolutions.

RESTELLI IS AT LARGE

Quincy Murderer Has Eluded Search Thus Far

A TRACE FROM VERMONT

State's Attorney Meagher of Bennington Telephone Chief Burrell Last Night About Man Who May Be the Fugitive.

Quincy, Mass., Aug. 1.—The Quincy police have heard no positive word concerning the whereabouts of Louis Restelli, the granite manufacturer, who is wanted on a charge of killing his mother, Mrs. Marianne Restelli, and Henry E. Hardwick, a prominent granite manufacturer, and wounding three others last Friday. Chief Burrell got a telephone message last night from State's Attorney Meagher of Bennington, Vt., who said that an Italian had been seen there early Sunday morning, who might be the missing Restelli.

Mr. Meagher told Chief Burrell that at 12:30 Sunday morning a Bennington police officer met a man, who was apparently an Italian, though he spoke good English, and who showed that he was traveling over the roads.

The officer had not heard of the Quincy tragedy and questioned the traveler only casually. The Italian said he had walked from North Adams and was bound to Rutland, Vt. He was not detained.

The Quincy police asked that the police officer be at once interviewed, and that from him some description be secured and that an organized pursuit be made. Chief Burrell requested that everything possible be done to overtake the man.

Mrs. Restelli's funeral was held at her home yesterday and was largely attended. There was a detail of police present, for it was thought that the man might return home to see his mother buried, and the surviving members of the family are afraid of the fugitive. Hardwick's funeral was held today.

Benjamin Bishop, one of the three persons wounded, is alleged by Restelli's revolver, was yesterday discharged from the hospital, and C. Theodore Hardwick, the dead man's son, and Caspare Restelli, the alleged assailant brother, were reported as rapidly recovering from their wounds.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 1.—Antonio Coletta, aged 27 years, slashed Carmela Cascone, aged 26, who was on her way to work with another man today. Jealousy was the cause of the act. The Cascone woman's throat was cut, her nose severed, her cheek slashed and her right arm cut to the bone. She is at the hospital and on the dangerous list. Coletta was arrested. He had a revolver and a razor in his possession.

MANY ATTENDED
ST. MONICA'S PICNIC

Annual Outing Was Held Saturday Afternoon at Dewey Park—Program of Games and Sports Arranged.

The annual picnic of St. Monica's church was held Saturday afternoon at Dewey park and proved to be one of the most delightful outings held in recent years. In spite of the threatening skies of the forenoon, a large crowd assembled at the park to participate in the varied program of races, jumping contests and baseball games. The church's orchestra was in evidence throughout the afternoon and furnished excellent music until evening.

Among the amusements provided for the crowd were included a tug-of-war between the married and single ladies. Two matches lasted several minutes, and to the last the result was in doubt. The married ladies, however, at last succeeded in exhausting their opponents, and the contest was declared in their favor.

In the young ladies' race, Miss Humphrey won the first prize, followed by Miss Madeline McNulty second and Miss Ethel Marion a close third. Stephen Lacey secured first place in the boys' race with Wilbur Brault second and Paul Kingston coming in third. In the shot event, Thomas O'Leary threw the longest distance, while Thomas McGoff came in for the second prize. Numerous ball games furnished entertainment for the children, who also entered into some of the races and other field sports. Altogether it was a day of much merriment and seemed to be thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended. The proceeds of the affair will go toward the support of the cemetery on Dealey street, a good-sized sum being realized for this purpose.

It was through the efforts of the cemetery committee that the outing had its inception, and it is to them that no little of the credit of its success is due. The committee is composed of the following persons: John O'Leary, Patrick Noonan and A. J. Lorange, Sub-committee, which helped to make the day a success, were as follows: Committee on sports, William Dwyer, Dr. Stewart, D. J. Sullivan, Peter Desautels, Dr. Aronhault, refreshments, Patrick Herman, John Hartigan, Peter Lemay, T. J. Denning, Edward Norman, tickets, A. J. Lorange, A. C. Moore, Michael Keefe, A. H. Burke, T. J. Carroll, popcorn, Edward McGulley, J. T. Gallagher, J. E. Murphy, Dennis A. H. Frazier, James T. Frazier, William Turner, coffee, Mrs. J. Cummings, soft drinks, William Kelly, E. Langlois, J. Fitzgerald. The ladies of the parish had charge of the other refreshments served on the grounds.

NOSE BROKEN BY BASEBALL BAT.
Arthur Cave Spectator Hurt at Young Men's Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Young Men's club was held Saturday afternoon at the grounds of the Young Men's club and proved to be one of the most enjoyable affairs of its kind ever undertaken by the club. All told, it is estimated that over 200 persons were present to take part in the various amusements arranged for the day. The picnicers left the city about 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and returned home at 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Races of every description were enjoyed by the younger members of the party, while the chief feature of the day's sports was the baseball game between the married and single men. The contest was of the fast variety, and high excitement prevailed during every round. Any attempt to communicate the number of runs made on each side would have resulted in confusion, and after the first few innings the score handed in his resignation. It is understood, however, that they were outclassed, and the game was awarded to the single men.

One hundred and thirty-five married ladies and married men were on end of amusement for spectators and participants alike. During the afternoon free refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, lemonade and other soft drinks were served.

Only one incident occurred to mar the pleasure of the outing. Previous to the last game, Arthur Cave, the engineer at the shore, was standing near one of the players who was knocking his bat against the ball, the bat swung around, striking Cave between the eyes. Although at first stunned, the injured man did not lose consciousness. An automobile was soon on the scene and he was taken to the office of Dr. H. O. Warren on North street. On examination it was found that the man's nose had been broken. On account of the excessive swelling of the injured member, it was thought best not to set the bone until the swelling had gone down. Beyond the broken nose, there were no injuries, and although it is expected that Cave may be disabled somewhat, no other undesirable results will follow. The committee which had charge of the outing consisted of the following persons: George Williamson, Victor Boulanger, and Clarence Restelli. They also acted as starters and judges for the various athletic events.

JOINT PICNIC HELD
By Swedish Mission of Barre with Montpelier People Saturday.

The annual outing of the Swedish mission and Sunday school was held Saturday afternoon in Peter Johnson's grove near Vin street. Weather conditions were ideal for the occasion, and nothing was spared to make the affair one of pleasure for all who attended. The picnic was held in conjunction with the Sunday school from the Swedish mission at Montpelier, and the young people of both schools entered with enthusiasm into the various sports provided for their amusement. In addition to the luncheon which each individual brought along, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served free of charge throughout the afternoon.

Not the least among the features of the afternoon's program were the ball games between the two schools. All of the games were evenly contested, and excitement was at high pitch from the start to the finish of every contest. The picnicers returned to the city and Montpelier soon after six o'clock.

ENGINEERS ARE RUNNING

Although Old Wage Schedule Expired Last Night

SETTLEMENT IN THE AIR

The Focus of Affairs Seems to Be in Montreal, Where Conferences Have Been Held for Two Days—Little Trouble in Essex Junction.

St. Albans, Aug. 1.—Although the old schedule of the engineers and firemen on the Central Vermont and Grand Trunk railroads expired last night at midnight, the engineers of both roads are running their engines, so far as can be learned at noon today. Many people confidently expected that the engineers would strike, but the schedules are being carried out as usual.

General Manager Jones said today there was no intimation of the end of the wage dispute, but there is a feeling that a settlement of the trouble is near at hand, although there seems to be nothing substantial on which to base the belief. The striking trainmen are awaiting word from Montreal, where for two days conferences have been going on between the railroad officials and the labor leaders.

Following the riot in the local yard Friday night, order has been maintained here, and the expected disturbance of Saturday night did not materialize. There was, however, more or less trouble in other places. At Essex yesterday a brakeman was struck in the head with a stone and was badly injured. A strikebreaking conductor also had his troubles, when strike sympathizers pulled pins out of the couplings.

NEW STRIKEBREAKERS
ARRIVE IN BARRE

When They First Ask for Bread, They Are Given a Stony Look—One of the Newcomers Is a Conductor.

Four new strikebreakers were put on the Barre branch of the C. V. today, as a conductor of the passenger train, to take the place of J. J. Keady, who has been appointed trainmaster, and the other three are working in the local yard with a shifting engine. The passenger conductor's name is McGee, who is said to have come here from Bradford. He appeared this morning on the train in a uniform. The other conductors, who are also strikebreakers, wear no uniforms.

Deputy Sheriff H. D. Camp took the three yardmen in tow this forenoon and attempted to find them a boarding place in the city. He was turned down by several restaurant keepers but at last succeeded in finding a place where the proprietors consented to take them in.

An engine 205 from Montpelier brought up a train of 24 cars at 12:45 this afternoon, in charge of J. P. Gallagher of Montpelier. Only three of the freight cars were loaded, the others being empty. They took back a loaded train of 13 cars.

There has been no change in the engineers on the engines here, the same men being at work today.

SCRAP IN A BARN.

Frank Yearstow Exhibits Wounds and Has Fred Mears Fined; More Promises.

Exhibiting a black spot on one leg, where he claimed he had been hit with an axe, and also a dressed wound on the head, where he said his assailant had hit him with a pitchfork, Frank Yearstow filed a warrant sworn out today for Fred W. Mears, on the charge of breach of the peace. The warrant was served by Deputy Sheriff George L. Mears, and when arraigned in city court Mears pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $5, with costs of $5.84.

Yearstow says he went to the Mears barn on South Main street last evening to make a call and that Mears and a hired man locked the door, making him a prisoner. Yearstow further says that he didn't begin the trouble, and he didn't strike back, for he expected that they were laying for the chance to get him "tugged."

There isn't much hair on Yearstow's top scalp, where the pitchfork hit, and therefore little protection, but the shortage did make it easier to dress the wound.

Yearstow is the man who was last week sued by his wife for divorce after Mrs. Yearstow's marriage. He is now Mrs. Yearstow's father-in-law, and he is now getting along together in the best of fashion since the marriage. It is alleged; and on top of the court action in suing Mears today, Yearstow says he is going right about bringing a civil action for damages, setting up the damages at $1,000. Not only that, but then some. However, that is getting ahead of the story of events.

200 MEN AND BAND.

Vermed Funeral Escort for Elderly Man of the Italian Colony.

The funeral service for Giacomo Malatesta, held from the house on Smith street at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was the largest attended held in the Italian colony for a long time. The deceased was 72 years of age and one of the oldest Italians in Barre and was also very popular among his countrymen.

The body was escorted from the house to the grave by a procession of over 200 men in line, headed by a Italian band. The pallbearers were six members of the Old Man's society of the Italian colony, of which the deceased was a member.

LACK OF PRACTICE
CAUSED DEFEAT

Barre Ranger Soccer Football Team Went Down Before the Quincy McGregors Saturday by Score of 2 to 1.

The McGregor association football team of Quincy, Mass., defeated the Barre Rangers at the Berlin street grounds Saturday afternoon, in a fast and well-played game. The score was 2 to 1. The McGregors are a fast aggregation, and they played with good team work, badly outclassing the Rangers in this respect. A good game was expected and it was realized, as the Rangers are made up of experienced players, and had they not been handicapped by lack of practice, would have undoubtedly made a different ending of the game. An enthusiastic crowd of about 300 people watched the game with apparent interest throughout.

The McGregors got their first goal in the first minute of play. On the start-off, the Rangers booted the ball towards the visitors' goal and got it close to the goal, but lost it; and the McGregors then rushed it back straight for the goal, and a swift kick from the 25-yard line by "Joe Gans," or Henry, sent the ball whizzing by the goalkeeper and between the posts.

The Rangers then settled down to better work and kept the visitors hustling for the rest of the half. The Rangers had the ball in front of the visitors' goal a good half of the time, but systematic teamwork was lacking at critical times and the ball would be booted back down the field by a number eleven shoe of a McGregor. Two visitors, however, found it just as hard when they were in striking distance of the goal, and the half ended with no more scoring.

In the second half, the visitors scored their second goal after eight minutes of play, the ball being booted through by Frayzie. Webster saved the Rangers from being whitewashed by scoring a goal on a penalty kick just four minutes before the game ended. A foul by the McGregors, made within the penalty line, gave the Rangers a free for the goal, with only the goalkeeper to block the ball. Webster was detailed to do the kicking, and he aimed the ball past the keeper with ease, and he proved he could do it again, for the referee saw some of the locals over the line when the kick was made, and he ordered the ball placed again, and Webster kicked it through a second time.

The line-up: McGregors—Goal, Drysdale; backs, Wilson and Craig; half-backs, McDonald, E. Robertson and Mel drum; forwards, R. Robertson, Ronald Farquhar, Rowe and Joe Gans. Rangers—Goal, Smith; backs, J. Mitchell and Wilson; half-backs, Lindsay, Bisset and Johnston; forwards, Anderson, Melville, Webster, Creighton and G. Mitchell. Referee, Joseph Will. Lineupmen, Smith and Melrose. Time, two 45-minute halves.

BARRE MAN WITNESS TO QUINCY SHOOTING

F. C. Wetmore Was Standing Near One of the Victims When Louis Restelli Opened Fire, and He Expected to Be Shot Also.

F. C. Wetmore of this city came near being one of the victims of Luigi Restelli, the Quincy, Mass., murderer, who shot down five persons, two fatally, in that city Friday afternoon and who is still at large. Mr. Wetmore is in Quincy, superintending the setting up of an electric crane for the Smith, Whitcomb & Cook company in the plant run by the Restellis and was there Friday, when the catastrophe occurred. Mr. Wetmore was standing talking with Caspare Restelli, when Luigi appeared in the shed with two Colt revolvers in his hands and immediately opened fire on his brother, Caspare. Caspare fell to the ground, seriously wounded, and Luigi then turned his revolver on Adrian, the bookkeeper, who was also standing near by.

Believing that the infuriated man was evidently determined to shoot all in sight, Mr. Wetmore expected his turn would be next, but after emptying his gun at the bookkeeper Luigi turned and ran to his team and drove off. Mr. Wetmore then turned his attention to the two wounded men and had them taken to the hospital.

Many Barre people are acquainted with the murderer, who at one time resided in this city. The Quincy Ledger says that Restelli was in Barre five years ago, working as a spy for the anti-saloon people among the Italian population. The Ledger goes on to say that Restelli was discovered as a spy and after he had shot a man was rounded out of town. This statement about his shooting a man here seems to be incorrect, but it is said that Restelli was warned to leave Barre by irate Italian people, who claimed he came here as a spy.

There is some belief that Restelli will come to Barre in his effort to elude the searchers; but the local police up to this afternoon had not been notified by the Quincy police to be on the watch for the fugitive, and it is not considered likely, in view of his previous reception here, that Restelli would seek refuge in Barre.

The Quincy Ledger describes the fugitive as follows:—

"The murderer is 35 years old, of powerful build, though short—he stands five feet eight inches in height—and is smooth shaven. He is awfully black haired and wears rather thick glasses. He wore khaki pants, with dark coat and hat, yesterday afternoon, but he may have changed. He was born in Italy and came to this country early."

Barre people who know the man say that he was a good fellow, apparently of ordinary self-control, and generally peaceable enough. He was in business in Quincy formerly. The two Hardwicks—Henry E., who was fatally shot, and C. Theodore, who was badly injured—were sons of Charles H. Hardwick, who after his death conducted a granite business under the name of C. H. Hardwick & Co. The Hardwick family is among the most prominent in Quincy.

HOUSE FIRE
COSTS $600

David J. Boyce's Residence on Grant Avenue

WAS PARTIALLY BURNED

Cause Was Explosion of Kerosene Stove. Fire Alarm Whistle Did Not Sound and All of Firemen Failed to Respond.

The explosion of a kerosene stove caused a damage of about $600 in the house occupied by David J. Boyce on Grant avenue early Sunday morning. The fire alarm was rung in at 5:30 from box 15 on Granite street by one of the firemen, at the order of Chief Gladling. Mr. Boyce had called the fire station by telephone and when the fire chief arrived and saw the extent of the fire he sent in the general alarm for more assistance.

The damage was confined to the kitchen, where the stove exploded though the flames burned up through to the roof of the back of the house. The roof of the barn, which sets close to the rear of the house also caught fire but the firemen applied a stream of water to the roof when they first arrived and extinguished the flames before much damage was done to the barn. The chief had two streams going on the house and in 30 minutes had the flames under control and the "all out" signal rung in.

Mr. Boyce had gotten up early to go out berrying and had lighted a small kerosene stove for the purpose of cooking a lunch for himself. After lighting the stove he went back up stairs for a few minutes and just as he was returning he heard the noise of an explosion and going into the kitchen found it a mass of flames from the burning oil. The damage is covered by insurance in the G. H. Page agency.

When asked why the whistle did not blow when the alarm was pulled in, Chief Gladling said that the fire in the boiler at the Gas company's plant was so low that there was no steam in the whistle. Because of the failure of the whistle to sound many of the call men of the department failed to respond to the alarm. The test signal of the system worked satisfactorily at 8:10 this morning.

BARRE GRANITE EXHIBIT
Is Being Sent to Knights Templar Conclave in Chicago.

Four large pictures of the Barre granite industry will be sent to Chicago by express this afternoon to be exhibited in the headquarters of the Grand Commandery of Vermont, Knights Templar, at the triennial convocation to be held there next week. The headquarters of the Vermont commandery will be in the Palmer hotel. These views are probably the best and the most systematically arranged that have ever been taken to show the principal features and the extent of the granite industry here.

Two of the pictures are six feet by three feet and contain selected views of the leading granite plants. Another contains views of the quarries and the fourth contains photographs of the famous monuments and mausoleums that have been produced here.

It is the idea of Deputy Grand Commander George F. Root of Newport to give the visitors to the Vermont headquarters from other parts of the country as good an idea as possible of the leading industries of the state. There will be other views of industries and scenery in the state. It had been planned to have a photograph of the special western granite train with suitable placards the whole length of the train in this exhibit, but owing to the strike on the railroad it was thought that it would be impossible to get a photograph of the train in time for the exhibit. An effort, however, will be made to get one taken in time for the Rochester convention on August 23 to 25.

EXCAVATION STARTED
For New Building at Corner of Main and Elm Streets.

The work of excavating for the new Aldrich estate block on Main and Elm streets was commenced this morning under the direction of Contractor N. M. Nelson. On account of a delay in the completion of the new banking rooms in the Howland block, the raising of the old building now occupied by the National bank of Barre, cannot be carried out for a few days. But this will not hinder Mr. Nelson's men from digging the cellar in time for the job. It is expected that a large number of teams will be put at work on the job, as soon as there is room enough to warrant it. Street commissioner Jesse C. DeBorne also has a gang of laborers employed in removing the sewer pipe further out into the road bed. When surveying for the block, it was found that a section of the city's sewer system crossed the building lot, making it necessary to remove it a distance of several feet eastward. This change will in no way interfere with the system. It is expected that the job will be completed shortly.

MRS. LIZIE (EARLE) GOODWIN.
Wife of W. C. Goodwin of Prospect Street Died This Forenoon.

Mrs. Lizzie (Earle) Goodwin, wife of W. C. Goodwin of 72 Prospect street, died at 10 o'clock this morning, after a long and painful illness. Mrs. Goodwin was born in Williamstown 67 years ago. Besides her husband, she leaves one son, Phiney E. Goodwin of Franconia, N. H., and two brothers, George C. Earle of Williamstown and E. A. Earle of Fitchburg, Mass. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.
